Cause of Dallas Airline Crash Remains Uncertain

Pilot Tells of Engine Failure But Can Give No Reason for It

DALLAS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Investigators studied bits of wreckage and survivors' statements today in an effort to piece together all details of an American Airlines plane crash in which 28 died.

Eighteen other persons were injured in the pre-dawn accident yesterday.

The 60-passenger plane, bound from New York to Mexico City slammed into two buildings and exploded in flames on the edge of the Love Field Airport. One engine was afire and another was failing before the plane struck. It veered sharply to the left before crashing.

From the injured pilot and co-pilot came statements saying what happened—but not why. Capt. Laurens (Tommy) Claude said his No. 1 engine had not functioned properly on the New York-Washington-Dallas-Mexico City flight. Of what happened here, he said:

"I squared away to make a landing with flaps and gear down on a final approach. The No. 4 engine quit and I called to the flight engineer to cut on the booster pump when the fuel flow dropped to zero and the left wing dropped after the airplane started to mush in (below flying speed).

"I called for flaps and gear up to the first officer (indicating an intention to regain altitude for another approach). With only two engines working there wasn't much power to gain altitude to climb.

"He (the first officer) called out: 'She's a goner.'

"As he said that, the plane hit the hanger and burst into flames, after that I had no clear recollection as to what happened except that the first officer and flight engineer were gone from the cockpit and I dived through the forward baggage hatch, through the fire that had started, crawling away."

Many of the dead and injured were prominent Mexicans. The Mexican foreign office announced it would send a special plane here to pick up bodies of Mexican citizens. The U. S. government waived custom formalities which ordinarily would require the plane to check in at a border station.

Of the 18 injured, none was in serious condition, and many had been released from hospitals.

Ferguson In Race For Senate Seat Now

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson made it official last night. He formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator.

Ferguson did it at a banquet put on by the Franklin County Democratic executive committee here. Many party leaders from over the state were on hand for Ferguson's long-awaited declaration.

He has been saying for some time that he is the only Democrat who can beat Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft in the November election. Taft is regarded as almost certain to win GOP nomination in the May primary.

Numerous farm and labor leaders have joined some Democrats in trying to get Ferguson to stay out of the primary. They want Democrats to unite behind a single candidate they feel has a better chance of beating Taft.

But Ferguson turned them all down. His announcement is regarded as a death blow to advocates of a single Democratic primary aspirant for the Senate. He and four other announced candidates could withdraw later but that isn't believed likely now.

Wounded Youth Held for Robbery

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A 17-year-old youth, believed by police to have been wounded in an $80 holdup of a confectionary store here late last night, is under police guard at St. Francis Hospital.

John Markos, Marion Township constable and son of one of the store owners, said he fired six pistol shots at two holdup men who fled in an auto.

A short time later the youth appeared at the hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds in his right leg and back.

New Atomic Weapon To Be Tested

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Some more, and probably even more deadly, atomic weapons are going to be exploded by the United States in a secret test. It will be weighty with meaning for Russia and the rest of an A-bomb conscious world.

A joint announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission and defense department last night gave the place—the mid-Pacific proving ground in Eniwetok atoll—but kept secret the time. It said only that tests are "planned."

There was an obvious reason for concealing the month, week or days on which the tests will be made: To foil any attempt by Russian submarines or airplanes to steal close enough to the atoll to make some technically useful observations.

Russia now has produced her own atomic explosion. Scientists here believe that Soviet bombs are far behind the new and vastly more powerful designs developed by the United States.

Apparently no foreign visitors, friendly or unfriendly, are wanted at Eniwetok for the forthcoming tests.

PROFIT GUARANTEE OPPOSED

Catholic Labor Wooed by Reds

Europe Recovery Plan Main Target

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Moscow once again is wooing Europe's Catholic labor unions to form a solid "front" with Communist workers in what may become a new campaign at disrupting the west's recovery program.

The Russian-led Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) in a resolution published yesterday after a secret meeting this month in Hungary urged Communist workers:

"In the struggle for working class unity special attention should be given to masses of Catholic workers and working people and their organizations x x x."

This call coincided with a bitter rift which has arisen here in the organization meeting of the anti-Communist Free World Labor Confederation over failure by its credentials committee to invite Catholic unions from Belgium, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Denmark and Luxembourg.

Observers here felt that the Cominform may have been well aware of this snub and had decided to take advantage of it.

The Cominform resolution was also seen by most observers as an attempt to counteract the recent Vatican decree excommunicating Catholics who militantly support Communism.

Religion No Bar

It advised its followers to bear in mind "that religious convictions are not an obstacle to working class unity, particularly when this unity is needed to save peace."

The observers noted that it is a well-known Communist tactic, particularly where they are in the minority, to try to create a "front" consisting of all parties on popular issues. They then see to it they are in control of key positions in the front from which they can direct their campaign along Moscow-directed lines.

This tactic was used with considerable effectiveness in Italy and

Lions Entertain Lions At Football Banquet

With practically the entire coaching staff from the University of Dayton on hand to help them, the Washington C. H. Lions paid tribute to the WHS Lion football squad at the club's annual grid banquet Tuesday night.

The young griders were feted at a steak dinner, introduced to the Lions and senior members of the 1949 team presented with gold miniature footballs.

After a round of speechmaking, mostly by football coaches from the University of Dayton, the group settled down to enjoy movies of the University of Dayton-University of Nevada grid game.

Jim Harris, hefty gravel-throated U. of D. line coach, took the spotlight with his candid remarks about the powerful Notre Dame University football team and football in general.

Coach Harris denied that manpower is the sole reason for the Irish success. He said "coaching stuck out all over them" in its victory over the University of Southern California.

Favors Platoon System

The University of Dayton line mentor spoke in favor of the platoon system by saying that it gives more boys a chance to play, establishes rivalry between the platoons and allows players to specialize.

Joe Quinn, backfield coach at U. of D., complimented WHS team for putting forth their best efforts during the past season.

He wound up his talk by saying: "It takes a lot of heart and a lot of guts to get out there every game."

John Marshall, freshman coach at U. of D., told the audience about prospects at the university next fall.

Fred Pierson, head football coach at WHS, introduced the 26 members of the high school grid team to Lions Club members and their guests and commented briefly on each.

W. L. O'Brien, who is the father of Danny and Dick O'Brien both University of Dayton footballers said the Lions backed the WHS team this year, and would continue to back them as long as "they were out there trying."

Coach Quinn presented the miniature gold footballs to senior members of the squad, with a hand shake and congratulations.

Those who received the miniature gold footballs besides Horney were George Beaver, Ray Anderson, Jim Aleshire, John Thompson, Joe Mann, Roddy Rummans, Bob Hyer and Bill Arnold.

Short talks thanking the Lions for their support during the past season were given by Stephen Brown, superintendent of schools; Arthur Wolters, principal of the high school and Charles Mustine, a member of the High School Athletic Board.

Controls Feared By Farm Bureau

Program Outlined At State Meeting

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—"The American Farm Bureau Federation does not want government to guarantee farmers a profit," Allan B. Kline Federation president, declared last night.

He added: "Government guarantees of profitable farm prices lead to stabilized mediocrity in agriculture."

Kline addressed the 31st annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. The meeting closes today with election of women trustees from the northeast and northwest districts and the report of the resolutions committee.

Declaring that the federation does not want government guarantee of profits to farmers, Kline continued: "If the government guarantees supports at profitable levels, it must then distribute the right to produce on an 'equitable' basis. This would mean among the inefficient and the efficient alike."

Politics Avoided

Kline said he did not like to mention the Brannan Farm Plan because politics had no part in the federation's farm program—but that the hog-corn ratio under the Brannan Plan would give a guaranteed profit to any hog raiser. This, he said, would in turn lead to more production.

He said he feared more production would cause a return eventually to government control of hog production.

"We neither expect nor desire to go back to unregulated private enterprise," he said, "but we are unwilling to forsake the traditional individual freedoms upon which our unique record of economic, political and social progress is based."

He said this country holds out great opportunities provided its policies are designed to foster individual initiative.

Kline stated support programs are only one factor in farm prosperity.

"Farmers should look at the other elements in the national economy that effect their welfare," Kline said. "They should take an overall look at what makes a better and more satisfactory country life and a better rural community."

Long Range View

The key to long-range prosperity, he said, "is high production of both farm and industrial workers. This is because 'farmers live on the things they can buy with the returns from what they produce,' he said.

An earlier speaker, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), called upon Congress to try to balance the federal budget by slashing:

- (1) The military budget;
- (2) Foreign credit;
- (3) Government personnel by seven to 10 per cent;
- (4) Rivers and harbors appropriations, and
- (5) Certain mailmaking privileges, including second-class mailing.

He listed an unbalanced budget and monopoly as two of the nation's major dangers. He said he saw a current danger of big business controlling government and the possibility that the people, unable to control monopoly, asking the government to step in.

Douglas said both situations are wrong.

Threat of Coal Strike Hangs over Country

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The nation was threatened with a new coal strike at midnight tonight, and only a last minute move by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers policy committee seemed likely to avert the walkout.

OUTLOOK OMINOUS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—John L. Lewis again today postponed a meeting of his United Mine Workers Policy Committee until tomorrow morning—too late to avert a new nation wide soft coal strike due tonight.

The 200-man committee was scheduled to meet here this afternoon and Lewis, whose moves the past few days have been shrouded in secrecy, was in New York for the all-important session.

Mine owners were reported standing solidly against any contract concessions, and there was no indication of government intervention.

Reports from Key West, where President Truman is vacationing, said presidential advisers apparently were clinging to the hope of an 11th hour resumption of negotiations between Lewis and the operators which would permit extension of their three-week truce, expiring at midnight.

The policy committee had been directed by Lewis to meet here Monday, but at the last minute the session was postponed until yesterday, and then again until today. Lewis was busy elsewhere.

Lewis abandoned his old-time policy of "no contract no work" when the miners' agreement with the operators expired last June 30.

A short work week and a 52-day strike were interrupted on Nov. 9 by Lewis' order to go back to work. The truce order was issued after a meeting of the policy committee in Chicago Nov. 9.

The United Mine Workers chief sent word Monday and again yesterday that he would prefer to have his followers mark time while he tried to forge a new contract out of the very cool negotiations.

Meanderings

By Wash Fayette

I am glad to see the numerous garlands of Christmas greenery and vari-colored lights now being strung across the streets in the up-town section.

It reminds me that Washington C. H. was one of the first cities in Ohio to use strands of vari-colored lights and greenery for Christmas decorations.

That was quite a few years ago, and I know many people within a radius of 50 miles drove into Washington C. H. at night to see the decorations.

It was a big advertisement for the city, and a big boost for the Christmas spirit in this trading area.

I have seen many type of decorations in various cities, but never have I beheld more effective Christmas decorations than the garlands of lights and pine or cedar.

This year, for the first time in many years, the entire up-town area will share the garlands of lights as 28 strands in all will be used, and between 1600 and 1700 multi-colored lights will furnish the illumination.

Some strands were used last year, but this time the number of strands has been greatly increased, until they really outnumber the original strands 15 or 20 years ago.

Thomas Admits Payroll Padding

Jersey Congressman Seeks Court's Mercy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) today withdrew his plea of not guilty to charges of payroll padding, and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

The 54-year-old legislator changed his plea to one of nolo contendere. That means he does not contest the government's charge.

With this startling development, Judge Alexander M. Holtzoff dismissed a charge against Miss Helen Campbell, former secretary to Thomas. She was accused of conspiring with Thomas to defraud the government through padding of the lawmaker's office payroll.

Holtzoff said that since Miss Campbell seemed to have acted merely as an employee of Thomas, he would dismiss the charges against her.

John R. Fitzpatrick, lawyer for Miss Campbell, had contended at the outset of the trial on Monday that every act of Miss Campbell was under "compulsion" from Thomas due to their employer-employee relationship.

Fitzpatrick told the court then that it was true that Miss Campbell had arranged for a niece, Myra Midkiff, and her maid, Arnette Minor, to go on Thomas' payroll. The government contended that neither ever did any real work; that their salary checks were deposited to Miss Campbell's account in a bank here, and that Miss Campbell in turn transferred funds to Thomas' bank account at Allendale, N. J.

Thomas' change of plea came when the government was ready to put Miss Midkiff and Miss Minor on the stand.

Killing Confessed By Jealous Husband

YOUNGSTOWN, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A steelworker and ex-convict today confessed the slaying of George "Slim" Davis, 44, whose body was dug out of a shallow grave here late Monday by three rabbit hunters.

Acting Detective Chief Lt. Frank Watters said today that Jerome Oates, 28, said he killed Davis because the latter had made improper advances to Mrs. Oates.

Police said Davis was killed in the Oates home several days prior to the discovery of the body. The body then apparently was buried in a hole near the Oates home and Monday afternoon was transferred to a field west of Youngstown city limits where the rabbit hunters stumbled upon it.

Calm after nearly 12 hours of questioning, Oates signed a confession statement this morning. His wife is being held as a material witness.

New Engineer Looks Around

Ferguson Tours County Tuesday

New County Engineer Charles A. Ferguson, spent his first day here taking a look around the county. Among the things he inspected were the county's bridges.

One of those that attracted his attention was the damaged bridge over Deer Creek on Waters Road, just north of Waterloo.

The damage was caused by a dynamite blast set off only 50 feet from the structure by the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation.

The company was running a pipeline through the area around the end of August, when they had to blast a channel near the bridge.

The explosion bent several steel members on the bridge and weakened the center pier.

Ferguson said that a bridge engineer will have to be called in to examine the structure and determine what repairs will have to be made.

Back in August the county estimated the damage at $5,000 and filed a claim with Texas Eastern for that amount.

As yet there has been no settlement of the claim.

Ferguson said Fayette County has quite a number of bridges in proportion to the number of creeks and streams.

For next year's repair program, he said that he will try to have most of the bridges painted.

"Some of them haven't been painted in year," he noted.

Football Banquet

The Lions, welcomed the Blue Lions to the Lions Club then turned the meeting over to Charles Reinke, program chairman. Other members of the program committee were Ed McCoy, Norris Highfield, W. L. O'Brien, Charles Spetnagle, Ellet Kaufman and C. E. McCauley.

O'Brien served as master-of-ceremonies for the occasion and made several of the introductions. A special guest of honor was Danny O'Brien, a student at the University of Dayton and varsity in regular.

In the movies of the Dayton-Nevada game, Danny played most of the time at left halfback on the offense. He turned in the most spectacular run of the game, a 40-yard dash off tackle, and it showed up plainly in the movies. Coach Quinn analyzed the plays as they were shown on the screen.

Atomic Weapon Test

American military men and scientists of the commission was present.

Up to now the United States has exploded eight atomic weapons. Two of them were dropped in wartime on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the other exploded in the initial pre-attack test at Alamogordo, N. M., in the 1946 tests at Bikini and Eniwetok.

Although thousands of persons have worked on the tests—40,000 at Bikini, 10,000 at Eniwetok—the only people ever hurt or killed were the intended victims, the Japanese of the two cities. Nor have there been any injuries as the result of test explosions.

It was clear that the forthcoming Eniwetok tests are to test-fire weapons improved in design and efficiency even since the 1948 explosions. The AEC has pointed out that, in addition to the computations of scientists and laboratory-room experiments, "the need for proof testing or the need for full scale experiments is a natural requirement."

Be Careful Is Warning Given

Sheriff Hays Points To Many Hazards

Motorists and pedestrians were urged today by Sheriff Orland Hays to drive and walk safely during the month of December.

"This is not an idle request," he emphasized. "Traffic accidents are usually high in December because of seasonal hazards resulting from reduced visibility due to earlier and longer periods of darkness and from inadequate traction due to bad winter weather, ice and snow."

For those who must drive in bad weather and on wet or icy pavements, Sheriff Hays gave these tips:

Be alert and drive at lower speeds.

Keep a greater distance between your car and the other vehicles.

Apply your brakes gently rather than jamming them on.

Keep your windshield and windows clear.

Don't drive after drinking.

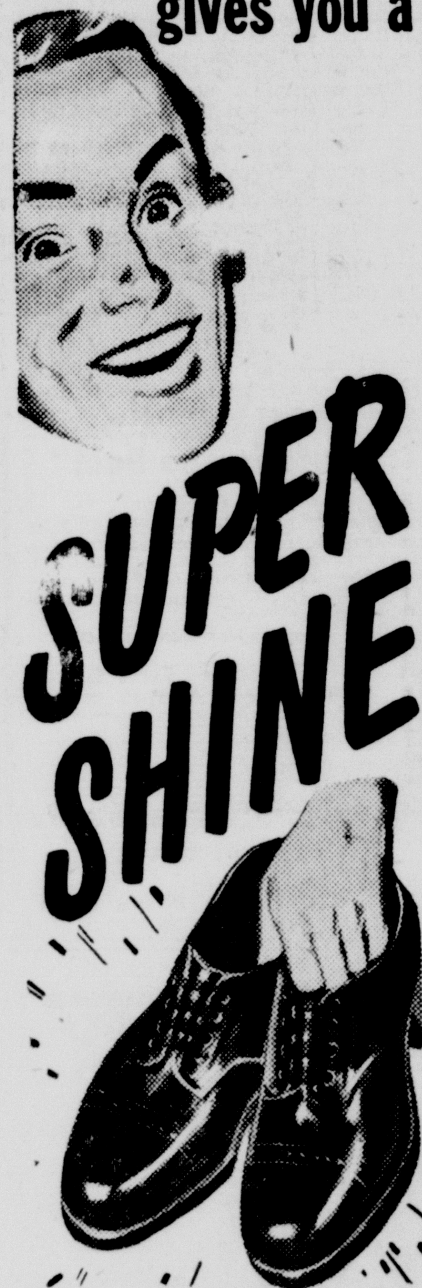

He also warned pedestrians to be especially alert, to wear or carry something white so that motorists will be more likely to see them, and to avoid carrying so many Christmas packages that they can't see over them.

What's Truth About Angus Ward Case?

We hear a lot of comments about the Angus Ward case. There are many, including some of our radio broadcasters and some publications, who make light of our slow method of handling this matter. They take a "let's show them" attitude.

There have been a number of speakers and others who are quoted as declaring we should have had war ships on the job to demand release of the government's representatives who were jailed in Communist-held China.

There may be other angles to this that we ought to think about. Nobody wants to precipitate a situation which conceivably even could bring about war.

On the other hand we are rather amazed at the state department's attitude in allegedly sending war ships to break the Chinese Nationalist blockade in southern China, which is reported to be principally for the purpose of aiding British interests. If this is true we don't understand why we should go all out for British interests and be exceedingly cautious about protecting our own people. Probably the sending of American war ships may also be attempting to look after American interests.

However there may be things about the Ward case which we do not understand. There are some American representatives abroad who like to "show-off" because they think they have the power of a great country behind them. Sometimes this attitude approaches almost insufferable arrogance.

It is now reported that Angus Ward and his staff have been released by Communist Chinese jailors and ordered deported. Perhaps a more calm look can be taken at the incident and some of the hot-headed demands for forceful action which were made to the state department while he and four members of his staff were prisoners. Perhaps the state department knew what it was doing.

The accusation against the five, that they beat a Chinese employee in a wage dispute, is ridiculous in American eyes, but not so in China. That an employer should answer an employee's request for a wage raise with the toe of his boot is not entirely unusual (although it would be for Americans in China), but it is unusual for the police to take an interest in the procedure. Their interest now is reported to be part of the "new order", reflecting the new relationship that is to exist between employer and employee.

If the Americans were legitimately arrested, why were they not promptly released on bail pending trial? Again, China is not America. Bail for police prisoners is not the common and expected practice in China.

Was the whole affair deliberately trumped up so that the new Communist masters of Mukden could make the Americans lose face? It is quite likely that this is so. It was a stupid thing to be done by an infant revolutionary government seeking international recognition, but it might be hard to convince an Oriental of that. For other Chinese it may have served the end of humiliating Americans. But other nations considering the question of recognizing the Communist regime in China have been caused to delay, and give some thought to the matter. Even some Chinese may have given new thought, for there are some who thoughtfully weigh the ancient Oriental regard for "face" against the Westerner's scorn for it.

In the end the Angus Ward affair may not react entirely to the disadvantage of United States prestige; as far as official actions are concerned, we may have lost face but maybe we were smart in withholding hasty action and in keeping our heads.

A report says Navy research has found that aircraft pilots are able to keep a better sense of position while flying if the padding in their seats is reduced. Wonder how that would work in the case of office chairs?

'So, Never Give A Gun to the Hun' By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK. (AP)—I dropped in the other day to get a quick sizeup on the international military situation from my old friend, Col. Amos Frothing, U. S. A.

The antique gent retired from active service during the Taft administration, but still likes to phone an occasional word of friendly advice to the pentagon. I found the cunn'l kneedep in his 1909 cavalry boots, sipping some 100 proof bouboon and growling at a typewriter.

"What're you up to sir?" I asked, tossing him a snappy boy scout salute. "Well, I'm writing a piece for the Infantry Journal that makes all histories of the Spanish-American War obsolete," said the colonel. "I've just discovered Theodore Roosevelt took the wrong path up San Juan Hill."

How interesting. I remember your last article on—

"You mean the one in which I listed seventeen fatal tactical orders given by the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo?" said the colonel, pleased.

"Yes, that caused quite a stir. It was a lucky thing for Wellington that Napoleon had indignation that day. He made 18 mistakes." To pry the old fellow out of the past, I asked him what he thought of the present military picture in Europe.

"Static, Junior. It's static as all get out."

"Do you foresee war?" "Certainly I foresee war," snorted Col. Frothing. "That's my job. I can foresee war as long as the human race stays as lamebrain as it is now."

I asked him when he thought the festivities with Russia would begin.

"Russia?" he said. "What makes you think we'll go to war with Russia?"

"Well, a lot of people probably think nylon comes from worms, just because silk does," growled the venerable vet. "But that don't make it so."

"Look, son, you may grow old and die, and your children may grow old and die, before we have to fight Russia. There may be a war with ten other countries before that, including Germany."

He saw my eyebrows go up.

"A lot of darn fools are saying we should re-arm the Germans to serve as a buffer between us and the Russians," said the colonel testily.

"That's nonsense. I was glad to see General Bradley is dead set against that idea. Smart fellow, that Bradley — for a young man under 60."

"Son, never give a gun to the Hun. I got too much respect for the Germans to think you can pay them to fight our wars. If they get guns again, they'll use 'em any dam' way they think will serve best. They might team up with the Russians to whip us, and then turn around and lick the tar out of the Russians. In fact, that's just what I think they'd do. They don't have any inferiority complex once they start goose-stepping, you know."

"Hiring a German army to fight for us would be just like trying to employ the late Jesse James as a bank guard."

The colonel poured himself four fingers of bourbon and drank it neat.

"What about the atom bomb?" I inquired.

"Glad you brought that up, junior," he said. "I've got a smallscale model I've been testing in the bathroom. Come in, and I'll show you how it works."

I left hastily. You never can be sure that old colonel is kidding.

Second Hiss Trial Implications By George E. Sokolsky

The beginning of the second Hiss trial is naturally a recapitulation of the first trial. The pattern so far is the same:

1. Whittaker Chambers says that he and Alger Hiss were servants of Soviet Russia engaged in the theft of American state papers:

2. Hiss's lawyer seeks to prove that Whittaker Chambers has been and is a liar, a thief and a traitor; he also will try to prove that Whittaker Chambers is a psychiatric case:

3. Whittaker Chambers admits the charges, except the psychiatry, even providing proof of them, adding self-denunciatory data as he goes along:

4. Hiss's lawyer fails to break through Whittaker Chambers' calm, because Chambers has totally exposed himself.

In the second trial, the Hiss lawyer, Claude B. Cross, has added a new element of importance. Realizing that until it is proved that someone other than Alger Hiss gave the documents to Whittaker Chambers, it will be unconvincing that Alger Hiss did not give them to him, Cross introduces Henry Julian Wadleigh as the guilty one.

In a word, someone gave the papers to Chambers. He had them. They were taken from him. They exist. That is the corpus delicti. And they are available for the jury to see. Chambers says that Alger Hiss gave them to him. No amount of evidence to show that Chambers is a liar and mad will disprove the fact that Chambers had the papers in his possession and that they were taken from him. Also, establishing that Chambers gave false data in a passport matter will not disprove that those papers were the property of the government of the United States, that they should have been made in the secret files of the state department, that they should never have been in the possession of Whittaker Chambers, and that as he did have them, someone gave them to him.

Here, however, we are faced by a curious fact. Francis B. Sayre, Alger Hiss's chief at the time of the theft of these documents, has already testified that certain of them could only be in the possession of himself, Salre, Alger Hiss and two women secretaries. It is to be inferred then, that if Mr. Cross's contention that Wadleigh stole the documents is correct, only Sayre, Hiss or the two young ladies. As these were very sensitive documents, the possession of which by a foreign power would imperil the United States, such a theft should have been noted and reported immediately and an alarm sprung. Instead, Wadleigh continued to be employed by the government of the United States, to wit, by the state department.

Therefore, on the testimony so far available, the Wadleigh story does not hold water. Wadleigh is a self-confessed spy and upon him much opprobrium can be heaped. But it has to be established that he and not Alger Hiss gave the documents to Whittaker Chambers. If it is established by showing that both Chambers and Wadleigh were spies and liars, that does not absolve Hiss, who, even if declared not guilty by a jury, has to continue to live in a world of reasonable doubts. Mr. Cross needs to be sure that he saves his client from that as much as from a verdict of guilty.

He cannot establish Hiss's innocence by the tenuous circumstance that Chambers and Wadleigh having been spies and liars, therefore Hiss did not give Chambers the documents. A non sequitur never proved a point in logic or in law.

Francis B. Sayre should be put on the witness stand. Failure to call him will arouse suspicion which will be unfair to Sayre and will not aid Hiss. It will also throw suspicion on the state department itself which had to fire 151 persons for suspected or known disloyalty up to December, 1948. Yet that is the most sensitive agency of government and should be simon-pure.

Whether Hiss is proved guilty or not guilty is a small matter; that our government is free of espionage is of the essence. No individual is too important in a case of this nature.

Diet and Health One Type of Cancer Is Detected by Tests

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
EVERY woman should be grateful for a new test which makes possible the detection of cancer of the womb far earlier than it would ever be revealed by any symptom such as pain or bleeding.
Developed in 1945, this test, which consists in examining material from the womb, has proved simple to use and very accurate in its results. The procedure consists in taking out, with a surgical instrument called a curette, which is in reality just a small spoon, a small piece of material from the opening into the womb. This procedure is performed at a routine examination and does not require any anesthetic, for it is not at all painful.

Diagnosis of Cancer
A group of doctors performed this test on 1816 women. A diagnosis of cancer was established by this means in four patients, in whom no other symptoms of cancer of the womb was present.

The material which is removed from the cervix, as the womb opening is called, is smeared on an ordinary glass slide. The slide is placed in a large jar containing alcohol and ether. These slides stay in this solution for at least an hour, but may remain for days. They are then stained and examined under the microscope.

War On Communists Is Declared by CIO

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Policy-makers of the new CIO Electrical Workers Union set out anew today to give American labor a blueprint for fighting Communism in its ranks.

The union, successor to the expelled United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UEA), started the second day of its founding convention with the pattern sharply drawn by CIO President Philip Murray.

Speaking for a full hour yesterday, Murray—his face flushed and his tongue bitter—attacked Communist leadership in the labor movement and warned that other left wing unions, now affiliated with CIO, would go the way of UEA.

He did not name them, however. "Your greatest enemy is Communism," he shouted.

"I have come here definitely committed to support you against all your enemies—and I care not who those enemies may be."

Certain types of television interference which make themselves known visually are called "snow" because they look just like that on the screen.

Proposed College At Canton Okayed

CANTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The American council on education recommends that Canton establish a municipal college that would start operations next fall. The report was presented to city council last night. The council is a co-operative organization of college faculty members who make surveys during summer months.
In a letter to council the Timken Foundation said it would make available $195,000 for initial operating costs of the school if voters approve a 1.45 mill levy at a special election before February, 1950. If the levy is rejected at the polls, the project should be dropped, the foundation said.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(P)—The room was bright with sunlight and jammed with newsmen. The five members of the Atomic Energy Commission came in and sat down behind a long table.

This was something new. Every month the commission was going to have a news conference like this where reporters could ask questions about the atomic program and the commissioners would try to answer.

It was understood they could not answer every question since the program was tied in with national security and there was a law against giving away atomic secrets.

For example, if someone asked "are we building a bomb 1,000 times as powerful as the one which destroyed Hiroshima?" a yes or no answer might be of military importance to the Russians.

So in a case like that, and there would be many similar cases, the commissioners would turn aside the question with a "no comment."

Perhaps in recent years you have felt in yourself a sense of unreality, a feeling that somehow the world and events were whirling past too fast for you, as you read about Schnorkel submarines, jet planes traveling faster than sound, and all the rest of modern wonders.

Well, I had a sense of unreality like that yesterday during the news conference of the Atomic Energy Commission. The Chairman, David E. Lilienthal, who's quitting Dec. 31, did most of the answering.

But since the atom is something you can't visualize, and since work on the atom is over the heads of most laymen, the questions and the answers or the "no comments" seemed almost to be dealing with an unreal world.

And yet all of us in the room knew that those five atomic commissioners were engaged in two separate searches:

How to make more powerful weapons from knowledge of the atom and how to find ways of using the atom to help mankind.

There we sat, members of a citizenry which had delegated to these five commissioners and the government, power to withhold from us secrets that may some day change

Where to Send Leg Bands and Ear Tags

Game management officials are urging hunters and trappers to send all leg bands of pheasants and grouse, and ear tags of racoon and other animals trapped or killed during the hunting and trapping season.

Bands and tags should be sent to the county game protector, Irvin J. Patrick, or to the Ohio Division of Wildlife, 1106 State skidded around the two main questions which weren't even asked: What's the score now? And where are we headed?

The law would have forbidden an answer to the first and not even the commissioners could have answered the second.

our lives or change the world. Yet, because it was our government doing the atomic research the secrets were ours although we couldn't be told them. Actually, through our Congress, we erected walls to keep ourselves from being told too much.

Through our elected Congress we have provided to keep us—or rather, Congress informed—and to keep a check on the work of the five commissioners and all those employed by them.

And yet congressmen themselves passed the atomic law in such a way that they can't divulge—or, at least, are not supposed to—the secret stuff which might hurt us by helping an enemy.

And the unreality went even further. The five commissioners themselves are laymen. They're hired managers paid to see that the atomic program is run all right.

And behind them are the physicists and other scientists dealing in mathematical worlds that the commissioners can't enter because they lack the specialized knowledge.

Sitting there, watching the commissioners at the conference, I had the feeling we were skating on the edge of unreality. Or was it the edge of some golden future wherein the atom could be used for peace?

Shower Honors Ruth Jane Sexton A Bride-Elect

The party room of the Washington Coffee Shop was the scene of a lovely event on Sunday afternoon between the hours of two and five when Mrs. Howard Ross, her daughter, Miss Mary Jane Lininger and Miss Jean Buchanan of Columbus combined hospitalities at a miscellaneous shower complimenting Miss Ruth Jane Sexton bride-elect of Mr. Joe Bryan.

Chrysanthemums in large bouquets were used as decorations and the bride-to-be opened her beautiful array of gifts at one large table centered with a clever wedding scene. A recipe contest was the diversified entertainment provided by the hostesses for the guests and awards were presented Miss Jane Dixon and Mrs. Verna Cook.

Tempting refreshments were served at long tables and covers were found marked with clever nosegays as favors.

The guest list included, the bride-elect's mother Mrs. L. E. Sexton, and the prospective bridegroom's mother Mrs. Virgil Bryan. Mrs. Ora Saunders, Mrs. Paul Chaffin, Sr. Mrs. Eddie Hoskins, Mrs. Donald Denen, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mrs. Arthur Walker, Mrs. Roy Garrison, Mrs. Ralph Garrison, Mrs. Roger Acton, Mrs. Harold E. Smith, Miss Nellie Monteith, Mrs. Robert Rodgers, Mrs. Ralph Whaley, Mrs. Loren B. Johnson, Mrs. George Burke, Mrs. Jessie Denen, Miss Ida Cook, Mrs. Otis Rayburn, Mrs. W. A. ## Bryants Hosts At Family Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant entertained at a turkey dinner Sunday honoring Mrs. Bryant's sister, Mrs. Charles Seibern and Mr. Seibern who were married recently.

The guests included members of the family who were seated at one long table and smaller tables for the tempting meal, each centered with arrangements of shaggy chrysanthemums.

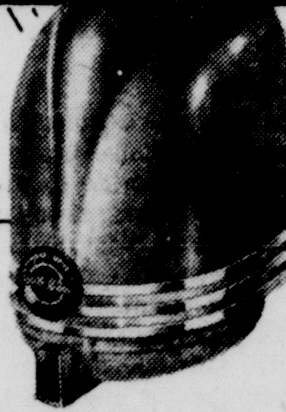

Following a congenial dinner hour informal visiting was enjoyed during the afternoon.

In addition to the honor guests those included were: Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Hatfield, Mr. Philip Hartman of Waverly, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hatfield, Mr. Earl Hatfield of Chillicothe and Mr. Forest Dray of this city.

The Columbia River, forming the boundary between Washington and Oregon, is believed to carry more water than all other American Pacific Coast streams combined.

Swedish Youth Speaks Before Rotary Club

Student In Political Science Comments On European Troubles

A youth from Stockholm, Sweden, who is studying political science in this country, proved to be a very interesting and entertaining speaker before Rotarians and guests at the club luncheon Tuesday at the County Club.

He is S. G. Svenheikka, now a student at Wilmington, College. He is planning a career in international law.

Svenheikka spent two years in Austria for the American Friends Society. He left Vienna to attend college in this country last July. His talk was largely based upon experiences in Austria but he spoke in a manner showing a remarkable grasp of the general political situation in Europe.

Introduced by Leonard Korn of the November program committee, the speaker declared that the distressing postwar picture of conditions in many countries of Europe was changing rapidly for the better as a result of American aid through the Marshall Plan and also from the vast amount of help from private sources in this country.

America Pays Its Way

In Austria, he said, the American government has proven a great financial help by paying its own occupation expenses for its soldiers. Every hotel and other quarters secured for American soldiers and other representatives, was paid with American money, something no other country did with the exception of England. French and Russian quarters taken over were not paid for. As a result, 85 percent of the country's income from the tourist trade was due to this type of payment by the United States, he stated.

The speaker touched upon the many transportation problems and difficulties in Austria and other European countries and spoke of the worry caused in Austria because of Communist problems.

Sweden's Neutrality

In talking about his native country of Sweden, the speaker told of that nation's difficulty in maintaining a policy of neutrality during the recent world war and of the compromises she was forced to make in order to hold that neutrality.

Sweden's more recent attitude in not signing the Atlantic Pact, he asserted, was not due to her lack of sympathy toward the nations which did sign it, but as a protection to the little country of Finland, so helpless and so much admired over the world, for its independent spirit. He said that Sweden was in a position to help Finland much more by staying out of the Atlantic Pact group, than by becoming one of these nations.

Communist Threat Here

The speaker stated that since coming to this country he had become inclined to the view that the United States faced not only a problem of stopping the spread of Communism in Europe, but was confronted with a distinct danger of the growth of Communism here at home.

Referring to the Marshall Plan in Europe he said that the Scandinavian countries probably would be on a safe economical basis by 1952, the present time limit for Marshall Plan aid, but he feared many other countries such as Austria, France and Italy would not be.

At the conclusion of the speaker's remarks, President Paul Pennington thanked him warmly for coming before the club and urged him to make another visit here.

During the club's business session birthday greetings were sung for Helge Petersen and Forest F. Tipton.

Ora Middleton introduced John Andrews as the Junior Rotarian and the outgoing junior club

No Tularemia Cases Reported

Less Rabbit Fever In the State

Not only have no tularemia or rabbit fever cases been reported in Fayette County so far this season, but not have been reported in Ohio, according to Dr. John D. Porterfield, director of the Department of Health.

In 1941, a total of 213 cases were recorded in Ohio, and in 1942, the number dropped to 29, and in 1945 only 12 cases were reported in Ohio. Last year, 15 cases were reported at the close of the rabbit hunting season.

It is thought that the importation of rabbits from other states for statewide restocking some 10 member, Raymond Anderson, expressed his thanks for the chance to attend meetings during the last two weeks.

A small number of rabbits are imported by a few sportsmen's clubs each year, but generally speaking, the rabbit population of Ohio is native and disease-free. Since the large importation practice has been discontinued, tularemia cases have declined from year to year.

Biologists have often stated that the rabbit is host to more diseases and parasites than any other wild creature. Hunters are cautioned therefore, to wear rubber gloves when dressing wild game. Rabbits with internal organs studded with small, white dots should be destroyed.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission research department last summer reported that 35 per cent of the rabbits trapped and inspected were warble infested. Most warbles leave the rabbit prior to November 1, but some remain longer.

More than three-quarter of American farm families have radios and sewing machines.

Pianist Practices Year Here
Preparing for Hollywood Job

HUGH BACKENSTOE

About a year ago, a young 29-year-old musician returned home here to practice after barnstorming the country as a "home band" pianist for close to ten years.

And that's exactly what Hugh Backenstoe has been doing for ten hours a day since, in his parents' home on the Jamestown Road.

Using a piano borrowed from a friend in town, Harold Craig, Backenstoe runs through technical exercises and memorizes classical music from 3 P. M. until 6 A. M. the next morning.

"That's right," he explains, "classical music; it helps develop your technique."

Most of the time, the young pianist prefers to practice in the dark. He says it sharpens his senses of hearing and touch.

To any casual observer, this intense practicing would seem rather superfluous for a pianist who has played with such top name bands as Frankie Carle and Pee Wee Hunt.

Not so to Backenstoe, however, who says that a pianist has to "hole up" and practice now and then if he expects to keep fresh and improve."

During their son's practice sessions, Mr. and Mrs. Hughey Backenstoe Sr. listen patiently and manage to bear with the constant stream of music from the studio.

At night, the pianist plays softly so that those members of the household on daytime schedules can get their rest.

"My parents have really been great about this," Backenstoe says. "Anyone tired of hearing a piano go 'for 10 hours, even I do at times."

Plans To Go To California

What's it all for?

"I plan to head to California for a job as a movie studio pianist about the beginning of the year," he explains.

As for the job, Backenstoe says that the studio pianist has to be an "all around piano player and musician."

"He might be called on to record either classical or popular music for a movie sound tank, or read something at sight to accompany a singer or instrumentalist."

As to his reasons for switching from playing in bands and at night clubs, the former pupil of Mrs. Marian Gage here explains it this way:

"The studio pianist may never get his name known, but he gets yearly contracts and makes a comfortable living."

He said that traveling with a top name band may be more lucrative, but being on the go all the time "wears you out."

As for being on the go, Backenstoe has had his share of it in the ten years or so since graduating from Ohio University in 1942.

During his five-year period with Frankie Carle, he did all the accompanying for soloists in the bandleader's show and took over all the piano work on several performances.

Played One-Night Stands

With Carle he played everything from coast to coast broadcasts to one night stands.

Of the latter variety of performance he has some comments.

For instance, there was the time when the band made 30 one-night stands in New England without ever checking into a hotel.

"Play one show, then pile right on the bus for the next one" is the description Backenstoe gives of the one-nighters.

In addition to his stand with Carle, Backenstoe has played with several orchestras in California and has appeared in solo engagements at night clubs. His most recent job was with a night club in Columbus, Ind.

Plans To Leave Soon

In another month or so Backenstoe expects to be ready for his job in California. He said it would probably be with Paramount or Universal Studios.

As to his 3,650 hours of practice, he says: "I got more accomplished here than I could in twice the time in California or New York. Being out of touch with the top-name talent has been a little difficult to take, however."

After studying piano since the

87 NEW INTERNATIONALS OFFERED
THROUGH OPEKASIT CENTER

Completely re-designed and re-engineered International trucks from International Harvester's new L-line were introduced Wednesday at the showroom of OPEKASIT CENTER, on U. S. Route 70, 1 mile west of Jeffersonville.

Invitation to inspect various models of the new L-line International trucks is extended by Mr. Nelson Baker, manager, and all the other employees at OPEKASIT CENTER.

The new International truck line consists of 87 basic truck chassis models designed to handle any type of hauling job, Mr. Baker said.

Mr. Baker said the heavy-duty engineered L-line presented a completely new design in motor trucks, at once apparent from the massive front end to the smartly styled cab. He pointed out that many new mechanical and engineering improvements, designed to promote operating efficiency and economy, were features of the new line.

ADVANCED DESIGN, ENGINEERING

Outstanding advances in design and engineering, Mr. Baker said, include:

1. New chassis dimension engineering permitting better load distribution, greater maneuverability, improved engine accessibility and short overall lengths while maintaining or increasing load-carrying lengths.
2. New, improved valve-in-head International truck series engines, including an all-new Silver Diamond engine.
3. A newly designed cab offering more roominess, added comfort and convenience and all-around visibility, factors in safer operation.
4. Complete restyling that blends a new modern truck streamlining with extreme practicability.

The new trucks, introduced after years of exhaustive testing and research, required the greatest expenditure of any new models in International history. More than $30,000,000 was spent for the vast production changeover involving the widespread revamping of facilities, layouts and assembly lines in the company's Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, Ind., and Springfield, Ohio, plants. Thousands of new machines, tools, dies, patterns, gauges and fixtures were acquired, and many new buildings were added along with extensions to existing facilities.

TRUCKS STERNLY TESTED

Additional expenditures were made to provide more than three years' road testing which went into proving the new trucks. This intensive program included laboratory and track testing in addition to over 3,000,000 miles of road driving under all kinds of operating, weather and road conditions.

The new L-line is spearheaded by four classifications of four-wheel model trucks, ranging in gross vehicle weight from 4200 pounds to 30,000 pounds. The new International line further features new multi-stop units, product of the company's Bridgeport, Conn., plant; a new group of six-wheel chassis units ranging in GVW from 22,000 to 50,000 pounds, and a new group of cab-forward chassis units, ranging upward from 14,000 pounds.

The company's "West Coast" trucks, manufactured in the Emeryville, Calif., International Harvester plant, include two highway and four off-highway vehicles, ranging in gross vehicle weight from 30,000 to 90,000 pounds.

Scores of body sizes and styles are offered in the new line.

NEW CHASSIS DIMENSIONS

Dimensions of the chassis of the new L-line have been engineered to provide better load distribution, greater maneuverability, shorter overall lengths and improved engine accessibility. Biggest change in chassis dimensions is in the wheel-bases, which have been shortened a much as seven inches in some models.

The shorter wheelbases, together with re-proportioned cab-to-rear axle dimensions and front-axle-to-cab dimensions, have resulted in a shifting of load weight, so that it is in balance between front and rear axles.

The shorter wheelbases and rearrangement of other chassis dimensions have made possible shorter overall lengths with no actual decrease in load-carrying lengths. In some cases, greater load-carrying lengths are available within the shorter overall lengths of the trucks.

Better maneuverability results from the shorter turning radius of the shorter wheelbases, as well as from the widened axle treads. The turning angle on practically all models throughout the line has been increased to a minimum of 37 degrees, for both popular and standard tire sizes.

NEW LIGHT ENGINE

The new Silver Diamond engine, used in the company's light and medium duty trucks, is a valve-in-head, six-cylinder power plant built in two sizes—the 220 cubic inch displacement size developing 105 horsepower, and the 240 cubic inch power plant which develops 108 horsepower. Improved engines are the Super Blue Diamond and the Super Red Diamond, both incorporating numerous engineering refinements. The Super Blue Diamond has a displacement of 260 cubic inches and a horsepower rating of 100.5. Compression ratio is 6.3 to 1. The Super Red Diamond is available in three sizes. The 372 cubic inch displacement size develops 144 horsepower; the 406 cubic inch displacement size, 154 horsepower, and the 450 cubic inch displacement size, 162 horsepower. Super Red Diamond compression ratio is 6.3 to 1.

The L-line offers a complete selection of transmissions to meet every hauling requirement. Main transmissions available include two sizes of three-speed Synchro-shift; a four-speed sliding gear; a new four-speed Synchro-shift; four sizes of heavy-duty, five-speed constant mesh, with direct or overdrive in fifth; and five-speed Synchro-shift, with direct or overdrive in fifth. A number of auxiliary transmissions also are available.

Wider, sturdier rear axles, engineered to handle any job, are available in the new models. Hypoid axles are introduced in the L-line.

NEW STYLING, COLORS

The new cabs have been designed to provide greater roominess and convenience. The many features include a smartly-styled curved contour instrument panel, a large, one-piece windshield, curved to minimize eyestrain and reduce glare, and conveniently clustered instruments.

New brighter colors are offered in the L-line. Standard colors include Harvester red, Adirondack green, Apache yellow and Arizona blue. Optional colors, at no extra cost, include Salt River Sand, Door County green, Black Canyon black, Valencia orange, Palomino cream and Chesapeake gray.

INTERNATIONAL TRUCKS

Every International Truck in the line is all new. And every new International Truck from 4,200 to 90,000 pounds GVW is HEAVY-DUTY ENGINEERED!

That means the new International Trucks give you lower operating and maintenance costs. It means they'll last longer. Look at the record.

For 18 straight years International has been first in the sale of heavy-duty trucks (16,001 pounds and over, GVW). Cost-conscious men who buy these trucks buy on a basis of performance proved by cost records.

The same management, the same engineers, the same production men, the same test experts who have kept International Trucks the outstanding value in the heavy-duty truck field, have developed every single new model in the new International Truck line.

Come in—find out what heavy-duty engineering means in terms of operating economy. See how heavy-duty engineered truck stamina is combined with new comfort and ease of handling. Go over the outstanding new features—each one proved under actual operating conditions in years of tests from coast to coast.

First Foe for Lions Wins Season's Opener

If scores mean anything—which they don't—it looks like the Lion cagers of WHS have their work cut out for them this season. At least, they are going up against a team that won its opener Tuesday night for their opener.

But, sometimes looks are deceiving....

Xenia Central's basketballers, who are to entertain the Lions Friday night, have their hands full in their curtain raiser Tuesday night but they beat the boys of Beaver Creek, 33 to 26.

Cub coach, Ron Guinn, scouted the game for the Lions. It will be their first encounter of the season.

Sunlights Climb On Forfeit by FB

Both Carroll Halliday's boys and the Sunlights won three-game victories in their records after Tuesday night's bowling at Bowland.

The Halliday crew had its hands full in taking a clean sweep from the Brown & Brockmeyer outfit by narrow margins, but the Sunlights got theirs the easy way when the Farm Bureau failed to show up and forfeited.

The other two matches resulted in split decisions with the Helfrich Marketers taking the first and last from the Cudahy Packers and the Kaufman quintet taking the first two from the Mark Constructors before losing the finale.

All of the matches were liberally sprinkled with individual totals of more than 500. Bob Carman was tops with games of 203, 202 and 195 for an even 600.

Scores Are High Competition Low

All four matches in Tuesday night's Implement League bowling at Bowland ended in clean sweeps for the victors.

While the competition was not quite up to standard, there were some high scores rolled—two single game totals went over 1,000.

Sons Grillers turned in the high score when they rolled 1,051 in their first game when they whitewashed the VFW.

Warner's Servicemen tallied 1,009 in their second game as they racked up a 2935 total to sew up the Wackmen.

The Mt. Sterling team took all three games from the Farm Bureau by totalling 2822 to 2707 and the Carpenter Hardwamen blanked Dutch Denton's boys with totals of 2946 to 2616.

High individual scores were plentiful. Bill McLean of the topped them all with 595.

Sandy Hill Most Outstanding Ohio High School Footballer

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30—(P)—Why did Associated Press sports editors name Harold (Sandy) Hill of Circleville Ohio's outstanding high school football player of 1949?

Well--

The 165-pound halfback scored 39 touchdowns and 25 extra points for a total of 259, enabling his team to win nine straight games.

This is a record for a Class A school—but it is not for all Ohio schools. Bob Lucas of Paulding scored 278 points in 1942.

Hill also gained more than 2,100 yards rushing, passed for nine touchdowns, and did all the punting and placekicking for Circleville.

His nearest competitor in the "Ohio's best" annual award was fullback Irvin Crable of Massillon. Jim (Dutch) Bolger of Cincinnati Purcell was third.

Others receiving votes in the "most valuable" race included Louis Mariano of Canton McKinley, Art Gerbe of Vermilion, Nick Trua of East Liverpool, Ray Bragalone of Campbell, Memorial, Jack Palmer of Wooster, Tom Tucker of Mansfield, Al Sebald of Middletown, Tony Anton of Akron East, Jim George of Smithfield, Joe Tange-man of Dayton Chaminade, John Shelton of Ironton, Lloyd Williams of Marion Harding, Tom McHugh of Toledo Central, John Borton of Alliance, Bill Burney of Youngstown Rayen, Bob Roberts of Zanesville, Paul Flowers of Newark, Doug Goodsell of Upper Arlington, Tom Long of Chillicothe, Bob Joseph of Martins Ferry, Carl Halo of Sandusky, Charles Skipton of Marietta, Charles Glover of Fremont, and Bob Sheets of Springfield.

Gunning for Coaches Follows Grid Season

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(P)—There were heavy rumblings today in college coaching ranks, the aftermath of a turbulent football season.

A new head coach was named at Oklahoma A. and M., a shake-up was forecast at Arkansas and rumors of changes were quelled at Pennsylvania, Wake Forest and Holy Cross.

J. B. (Ears) Whitworth, veteran line coach at the University of Georgia, was named head coach at Oklahoma A. and M. to succeed Jim Lookabaugh.

Lookabaugh resigned this fall after 11 years at the helm. His team won four games, lost four and tied two this year.

At Little Rock, Ark., there was a report John Barnhill would resign as head football coach today and turn over the reins to a big timer from professional ranks who can "jazz up" the Razorback offense.

The Arkansas Gazette, which made the prediction, said Barnhill probably would stay on as athletic director. The former Tennessee coach has called a press conference for noon (EST) today. The Razorbacks won five and lost five games the past season.

At Wake Forest, N. C., Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker said there was nothing to reports he had quit.

"I have not resigned here nor will I resign here," Walker said.

CHAPTER FIFTY-THREE

THEY SAT on the sand around the white cloth, all except Patricia—who perched on the boulder beside the sniffling, whimpering. "I'll say this chow is delicious—in fact, delectable." She turned her cup upside down to prove its emptiness and pounded deafeningly on it with a spoon. "Service! Service! Ready for the next course."

"You'll have to wait for the rest of us to catch up, Patricia," her grandmother reproved. "How does it happen that you have deserted your adored Fran for your family, ducky?"

"I got her settled—this is the day she sits for the portrait. Not much fun hanging round while John Eckhard stared at her. I don't wonder he did. She was positively out of sight seated on a bench in Miss Tassie's garden."

Miss Tassie's garden? Something squeezed Myles's heart. Eckhard had asked permission to use Shore Acres garden for the sitting. Was Fran so angry with the owner that she had refused to go there?

"What frock was she wearing?" Gene's question broke in on his troubled reflections. "One of her smart white spectator sports with the snappy green jade ring and choker to match. Nothing to write home about for a portrait, if you ask me. I wanted her to wear her lettuce green. I'll bet there are miles of net in the skirt, and wax beads. She's planning to wear it to Miss Tassie's waltz party tomorrow night. Jeepers, I wish the old girl would invite me to her blowouts."

"Wax beads! Don't you know Oriental pearls when you see them, kid?" Blake Sinclair demanded. "Clams coming up." He placed a huge wooden bowl full of steaming, partly opened shells in the middle of the white cloth. "Help yourselves, ladies and gents." Pat scowled at him belligerently.

"What if I don't know pearls when I see them, smarty—I know when people are nuts about Fran. I thought Mr. Eckhard never would get through telling her how to hold her head and her hands. She giggled. 'I guess he liked to touch her hands. I don't wonder. They are out of this world.' 'You're better than television, Pat. Did he do any painting?' Andrews inquired sarcastically. Myles stopped talking with Mrs. Sargent and looked at him.

"I can't tell you, Hal Andrews. I guess from the way you hung round the Gallery a few mornings you'd be glad to paint her. She gave you the tin dishes, she just babbled and babbled to get rid of you. I asked her why you beat it so fast and she said, 'I talked at exceeding length, Patricia, it worked like a charm.' 'Do you mean that? Was she putting on an act—if she—' 'We'll end the discussion of Miss Phillips right here, Andrews,' Myles was on his feet.

With a stifled protest Mafide caught his sleeve. "Don't be foolish, Hal. We'll take the rest of our lunch out on the rocks till this unpleasantness blows over."

Myles dropped back on the sand as the two disappeared among the boulders. Morrison Grove, sitting cross-legged beside him, chuckled. "As we were saying—by the way, what were we saying?"

"Pat, as usual, had the door—she's being spoiled. Mother—she was treating us to a technicolor picture of her idol." The tone in which Gene spoke of the friend who had pulled her out of a financial hole infuriated Myles.

"What if she is my idol, Gene Sargent?" Pat brought up her guns of defense. "She's the kindest, nicest person in this town. I bet if you asked—"

"Don't take a poll now, Pat," Gene protested sharply. "Here comes Eckhard. The sitting must be over."

"Where is Fran, John? She said she would join us."

"It was so late when we finished the sitting, Mrs. Sargent, she decided she wouldn't have time to really enjoy the bake. She had promised her boss to be on hand at the Gallery this afternoon to help break in the new girl."

"But, this is her day off. You should be helping in her place, Gene."

"Fran planned it as she wanted it, Mother. I wouldn't interfere. Dad said she would have tomorrow afternoon free."

Luck was with him. He would have a showdown with Fran this afternoon, Myles decided. It was just one of the calls he had planned for the next twenty-four hours. Betsy and one other. He thrust his hand into the pocket of his slacks. When he withdrew it a newspaper clipping came up and drifted to the beach.

"Sorry not to stay to help clear up but I have a heavy schedule for the afternoon. Join me, Morrie?"

"No. We three he-men are needed to carry the hampers to the house. Andrews seems to have reneged." As Gene, Sinclair and Eckhard joined Mrs. Sargent to collect the tin dishes to be rinsed, he added, sotto voce:

"Our artist friend picked up a newspaper clipping that dropped from your pocket. Looked as if he palmed it. Want it?"

"No. I have something to tell you. Meet me at the locker room at the Club at four, presumably for tennis. If I'm late stick around."

"I'll be there. I'll bet what you have to tell me isn't a patch on my piece of news."

Seated at the desk in her office Fran tried to concentrate on the memoranda slips she was preparing for the new assistant, but the beauty of the world outside lured her attention.

Perfect day, clear as a bell, must have been grand on the beach. Too bad to miss the clam bake but John Eckhard had been so absorbed in his work she hadn't had the heart to remind him they had a date with the Sargents. She had suggested that the sitting be postponed, that a luridly scratched cheek was not an asset in an artist's model, but he had declared it made no difference so early in his work. She had suggested also that he use Miss Tassie's garden as a background, she preferred it to that of Shore Acres.

"It's up to you," he had agreed quickly, almost as if he suspected that she didn't want her, life to touch Myles Jaffray's in any way. Myles back in her thoughts again! If she had decent pride she would keep him out of her mind as she had out of her life since their stormy midnight meeting in the garden.

In her room she had had time only to strip off the cotton frock, kick off the white wedgies before Natalie had knocked. She had confessed to her that because of restlessness from the pain in her cheek she had fled to the garden, that to her stunned surprise Blake Sinclair appeared, that Myles had come while they were talking and had been furiously angry. Natalie had smiled.

"You are not telling your real reason for going to the garden or why Myles was there at midnight, are you, Fran? It's all right. I like and trust you enough to accept your explanation. Now let me plump up the pillows and smooth the sheets and I think you'll go to sleep." Surprisingly enough she had.

What had happened to Blake that night after her escape unattended by the master of Shore Acres? They had motored, sailed, played tennis together every late afternoon since—but he had expertly side-stepped an explanation of his presence by the fountain. When in the few moments before Myles had descended on them with the suddenness of a lightning bolt she had asked him what he had answered nonchalantly:

"A cigarette stub, what else?" She had been so sure it wasn't true that she had hurried to the garden the next morning before breakfast and staring shadows of goldfish and darting lily pads only were visible on the pebbly bottom of the pool. Had Myles found something that night?

"Come in," she responded to a tap on the repair-shop door.

"Thanks for the cordial invitation," Myles Jaffray entered and closed the door behind him. "Dropped in to inquire the size of the canvas of 'Country Lane.' Nat wants to know. Don't scream for help, lady, the galleries are full of maybe customers and your boss wouldn't relish a touch of melodrama; it might short-circuit sales."

"I had no intention of screaming. The canvas is 31x38. That question is an excuse. I don't know why you came when I have made it plain that I neither care to see nor hear you."

"You are about to find out why," as he walked toward her she had a creepy close-up of a tiger stalking its prey. "I don't like your attitude toward me, you blow warm and you blow cold, but before we take up that I want to know why you met Sinclair in my garden at midnight."

"Don't be mid-Victorian, from you it is funny. If what I've heard is true you have dated countless girls in countless gardens at midnight, and while we are on the subject of your line, don't call me 'darling' again." Unendurably hurt by the distrust in his voice, she slashed.

"I was advised the first evening I met you to 'beware the wolf,' to watch out for your one-woman-in-my-life line: that it is your sportive custom to love and leave."

"Say that again and say it slowly."

The radio networks have one more Saturday of regular season football, then they will take a gridiron layoff until the holiday bowl games.

Saturday's windup will have two games. Both NBC and CBS will do Notre Dame-Southern Methodist and MBS is to carry Alabama-Auburn. ABC ended its football November 19.

Bowl games this time will be spread over the New Year's weekend, some on the last Saturday of December, but most others on January 2 because the holiday falls on Sunday.

MBS is spitting up its schedule to describe two college all-star events, North-South and East-West, on December 31 and the "gator Bowl" on January 2. CBS is planning to do both the Orange and Rose Bowls, while NBC will have the Cotton Bowl, heretofore on MBS. ABC has not yet made an announcement, but probably will be back at the Cotton Bowl.

As for television, none of the bowl events is expected to be accessible for network relay. Local telecasts are anticipated.

Guard Disciplined
COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(P)—Supt. W. F. Amrine of London Prison Farm today reported the 30-day disciplinary suspension of guard Stephen Smith. The suspension began yesterday. Amrine made his report to the State Civil Service Commission.

LEGAL NOTICE
Herman Taylor, whose place of residence is unknown and cannot be ascertained, will take notice that on the 28th day of November, 1949, the plaintiff, Clark Wickensimer, Administrator of the Estate of Vernon Taylor, deceased, filed a petition in the Probate Court within and for the County of Fayette, and State of Ohio, alleging that the personal estate of said decedent is insufficient to pay his debts and the charges of administering his estate; that he died seized in the undivided one-third interest of the following described real estate, situated in the City of Washington, County of Fayette, State of Ohio, and further described as follows, to-wit:

Being Lots No. Two Hundred Thirty-six (236) and Two Hundred Thirty-seven (237) in the Washington Improvement Company's Addition and subdivision of lands in and adjoining the said City of Washington, reference being hereby made to the recorded plat of said addition in the Recorder's Office of said county for a more particular description of said premises.

The prayer of said petition is for sale of said premises, for the payment of the debts and charges aforesaid. The person first above mentioned will further take notice that he has been made party defendant to said petition and that he is required to answer the same on or before the 11th day of January, 1950.

Clark Wickensimer, Administrator of the Estate of Vernon Taylor, Deceased.

New Farm Co-op Set In Northwest Ohio

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(P)—Canning crop growers in 13 northwestern Ohio counties have formed a cooperation to improve marketing conditions for their products.

The new group, Cannery Growers, Inc., is under the sponsorship of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

The counties represented are: Wood, Darke, Fulton, Sandusky, Williams, Ottawa, Lucas, Defiance, Henry, Seneca, Paulding, Hancock and Mercer.

More than half the total area of Oregon is under federal control. This includes 13 national forests, two national park service areas and extensive grazing acreages.

Winterized Concrete

Instructions for good results in winter months.
• Clean forms of all ice & snow
• Thaw ground if it is frozen, never place concrete on frozen ground.
• Protect concrete from freezing while setting up is taking place.
• Normally concrete (according to the Portland Cement Association) should be maintained at 50 degrees or higher for five days after placing. Straw is a fine protection.
• Do not remove forms until concrete has had time to harden.
• We steam out all frost from aggregates in a modern bin and batched plant.
• We use water at the advised temperature.
• We place ready mix in your forms at the recommended temperature.
• Concrete whether you mix with a hand shovel or buy ready mix is a manufacturing process.
• It's a simple process but it should be carefully done for best results.
• Any good contractor knows how to care for your job.

International Trucks Shown

Two Dealers Here Have New Models

The curtain was pulled back today on the new model International trucks at two agencies in Fayette County.

Salesmen were there to tell prospective buyers and just the plain interested "lookers" all about the improvements and fine points. It was the same in agencies all over the country, for this was the first showing of the new models.

Nothing elaborate had been planned for the occasion at either of the agencies in Fayette County.

Four different types of trucks were on display at the Denton Implement Co., on Columbus Avenue here. They ranged all the way from the light pickup to the big two-and-a-half ton jobs. Only the pickup, however, was complete and ready to go. The bigger trucks were on the floor in the customary stripped-down form—the cab and chassis ready for the bodies selected to suit special needs.

At the Opekasi Center at Jeffersonville, only the pickup was on display.

Both H. H. (Dutch) Denton of the Denton Implement Co. and Nelson Baker, the manager of the Opekasi Center agreed that "undoubtedly there is a lot of interest in these new International" and said they expected a good many visitors.

Speak For Themselves

Later on, they may have something special, they indicated, but for the present they "will let the trucks speak for themselves," as Denton put it.

However, both of the agencies have been spreading around the word of the showing and invitations to come in for a look at the new models.

All told, Denton and Baker said, there are 87 basic models of truck chassis designed to handle any type of hauling job.

Outstanding advances in design and engineering have been incorporated in the new models, they said. They mentioned greater maneuverability, visibility and streamlining for practicability.

More than $30,000,000 had been spent for the production change-over, they said.

They added that this did not include the expense of the three years of road testing.

Driver Arrested After Accident

Lycurgis Carpenter, 22, Cedarville, who has been up in police court here a number of times, was picked up Tuesday evening on a driving while drunk charge, after his automobile had crashed into Robert Link's car parked in Main Street.

Carpenter was driving east on Court Street turned north into Main and crashed into Link's car at the curb.

He was to appear in police court Wednesday afternoon.

Police said Carpenter had been arrested here once for reckless operation in 1946; three times in 1947, and for reckless operation earlier this year.

Sheriff Orland Hays said he once had Carpenter on a trespassing charge.

Many Reserve Tickets To WHS Games Left

More than 80 reserve seat tickets to WHS basketball games still remain, according to Arthur Wohlers, principal at the high school.

Tuesday morning all but 85 of the 132 reserve seat tickets were sold. The rest will be sold at the high school principal's office.

Founder's Day Plans Drafted At PTA Meeting

Mrs. U. S. Curnutt, State PTA Officer, Speaks Here Feb. 21

Tentative plans have been drafted by the city PTA Council for a general meeting of PTA groups in Washington C. H. February 21. Founders Day.

Mrs. U. S. Curnutt, state PTA officer, will be the principal speaker before the groups, it was announced.

The meeting, to be held in the WHS library, will give PTA members an opportunity to discuss school problems in small informal study groups. The meetings will be open to anyone in the city interested in school questions.

Announcement was made at the council meeting, held Monday night in the home economics room of the high school, that all the PTAs in the city have voted against any further donations to welfare groups.

The actions were taken on the recommendation of the state PTA organization. State officials were of the opinion that the PTA, engaged as it is in considerable welfare work, cannot help support other welfare organizations.

Mrs. Backenstoe Presides

Mrs. Emmett Backenstoe, president of the council, presided over the meeting. Stephen Brown, superintendent of schools, offered the prayer.

Mrs. A. B. McDonald read the secretary's report and Mrs. Robert McDonald the treasurer's report.

Mrs. William Humphries reported on a combined project of the five PTA groups in the city. No decision was reached on the matter and action postponed until it can be further investigated.

The question of organizing a PTA group for the high school was again discussed but no action taken. The matter will be studied further.

Hall, manager of Risch's Drug Store in Washington C. H.

Office girls at the meeting included Mary Cullen, June Davy and Mrs. Petrea Ferguson. Dougherty was also present at the meeting.

G. B. Vance Has A Winner In International Livestock Show

G. B. Vance, an industrial arts teacher at WHS for 23 years and a breeder of Suffolk sheep, was a happy man today -- and for a good reason too.

He returned here early Wednesday from the 50th International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, where his first prize yearling Suffolk ram was declared reserve champion breeding ram in competition with rams from all over the world.

The likeable teacher, who resides at 414 East Temple Street in Washington C. H., came home with some other prizes, in the Suffolk sheep competition.

His entries got fourth and fifth in the yearling ewe competition second in the get-of-sire competition and fourth in the flock competition.

The get-in-sire entry came from the Great Hopes farm in Benton Harbor, Mich., where Vance manages a flock during the summer.

Dr. O. W. House's Cattle Picked

Vance said some of his stock was shipped over here from England this summer. It is kept on the Stanley Dray farm about two miles southwest of here on the Wilmington Road.

Honors came to another Fayette County livestock breeder. The Associated Press announced that Dr. O. W. House, who has a farm east of Washington C. H. on the Circleville Road, won honors with his breeding Shorthorn cattle.

Two females won third in competition with 17 others and a pair
